Something Blue

The bride for this wedding came to us with a color palette of 'tiffany' blue and white. She happened to be an executive for Hermes fragrances and thus was drawn to floral palettes that were feminine, classic and soft. Although there would only a small number of guests at the wedding the bride wanted her wedding to have a detailed and sophisticated look. She also loved classic floral and lots of sparkle.

The bride's bouquet was a classic collection of white peonies, white lysianthus and white mums detailed with pretty pearls and rhinestones. The tiffany blue satin wrap added just a soft touch of color. The garden ceremony was simple but elegant. Large fresh floral arrangements of white peonies, hydrangea and mums filled elegant chrome urns which sat on chic mirrored stands.

Rather than being separated by tables, all the guests sat with the bride and groom at a very large 'kings style' table creating an intimate feel. A row of details accented the head table including fabulous floral centerpieces of white hydrangeas, and peonies which sat on top of tall crystal stands. Rhinestone vases filled with complement flowers, along with crystal candle sticks, were the low complement pieces.

Other tiffany inspired accents included a three tiered cake wrapped with rhinestone bands. Tiffany bags filled with pearls and other jewels accented the yummy candy bar. Lovely 'tiffany' style wrapped box was the packaging of choice for the mini bottles of... of course... Hermes perfumes.
