How do you guide couples to select a theme that's best suited for them?

In consulting with our couples, we strive to understand their own personal style and how we might reflect that in the decor and flowers. We ask questions like "would they be drawn to a more modern or more traditional style of wedding?" Do they like bold and brilliant colours or do they feel more comfortable with a soft palette? These questions will help us steer them to a design that will be a true reflection of their own personal tastes.

What was your inspiration for this style shoot?

I am always inspired by eclectic combinations. The shabby chic look of this shoot is a beautiful collaboration of vintage and current ideas using distressed and nostalgic pieces paired with luxurious flowers and details.

Tip: We always encourage our clients to step out side the wedding box. More often than not brides are not comfortable risking a design that they have not seen previously in a magazine, blog or social media for their wedding. They are more comfortable asking us to re-create something they have seen elsewhere or in our portfolio. Although this is a 'safe' way to ensure they know exactly what their day will look like, we find the most visually memorable events are those that are created exclusively for the client from a clean slate. Brides who are willing to take a risk with a fresh design can be confident that it is exclusive to them.

Being inspired by things we see is fine, but we suggest that this should only act as a starting point to creating a unique concept.
